Who made the Star-Spangled Banner?

Major George Armistead was the commanding officer here at Fort McHenry. The citizens of Baltimore were certain that the British would attack the city. Not knowing for sure when an attack would occur, the soldiers spent months preparing for it. Armistead made sure the soldiers were ready to defend the fort and to protect Baltimore. However, there was no suitable flag to fly over the fort. Major Armistead desired a flag to be made so large that the British would have no trouble seeing it from a distance.

This is when I came into the picture. I'm a local flag maker, and Major Armistead asked that I make two flags. I worked relentlessly for days stitching two American flags, one of which was to be the largest battle flag ever flown. What is my name? (Hint: find my name in one of the peepholes in the Visitor Center!) _____

Hey defenders!

Can you be the messenger and travel to Mary's house
(today known as The Star-Spangled Banner Flag House)
to give word to her to make two flags?

Junior Ranger

In what rooms of your home do you do these things?

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

A soldier's fare

Look at the items on the table.
Soup, salted meat, and bread
were common soldiers' food.

What items do you eat
each day?

Approximately 16 soldiers slept in this room. Men woke up to the sound of the fife and drum. During the day, men practiced marching, stood guard, trained on the cannons, cleaned their muskets, and performed chores around the fort such as chopping wood, painting, and preparing food. What do you do each day?

Hey Kids, it's Picture Time!

Draw what you liked best about your visit to this historic site!!

The National Park Service

The Reason for the National Park Service

The National Park Service was created in 1916. By that time, there were already many National Parks in the country, but there was no agency to protect and care for them. The creation of the National Park Service put everyone under one team name and combined all the parks under one mission.

The Mission of the National Park Service

The Park Service was created to help preserve and protect the best parts of our country. There are mountains, forests and lakes that need to be cared for. There are many endangered animals and other wildlife that live in these great areas that need to be guarded. There are also places where important historic events occurred, and those areas need to be protected so their stories can be told. In 1951, the team known as The National Park Service got an official logo.

Let's fill in the blanks! The Arrowhead is the logo of the National Park Service, and you'll see it in every National Park you visit. Each item in the Arrowhead represents a feature protected within all National Park sites. The Arrowhead is outlined below, but it is incomplete. Find an Arrowhead in the park and complete the drawing. By filling in the blanks, you will get hints as to what must be included within the outline.

HINTS

1. _____: Preservation of archaeological and historical artifacts.
2. _____: Protection of wildlife.
3. _____: Preservation for scenic and recreation value.
4. _____: Protection of vegetation.
